Lebanese replaces Egyptian commander

POST Middle East Affairs Correspondent
Lebanese President Elias Sarkis
last night replaced the commander of the joint Arab peace-keeping force, Gen. Mohammed Hassan Ghoneim of Egypt, by a Lebanese colonel. He is Ahmed al-Haj, a 45-year-old Moslem career officer who is said to enjoy high respect among Lebanese Christians.

No explanation was given for the move, but observers reported it was taken on the insistence of Christians and conservative Moslems who sought to guarantee their sovereignty over the joint Arab force formed by the recent Arab summit to enforce an end to Lebanon's 19-month civil war.

Units of the Arab force, largely dependent on Syrian troops now in Lebanon, were last night reported to have thrust into various battle fronts to disengage warring factions
as a prelude to reopening Lebanon's highways as well as air and sea ports. Dozens of vehicles belonging to this force were said to have moved towards the southern port of Sidon, which has been controlled for some time by an alliance combining Lebanese leftists and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Beirut had earlier witnessed a fierce exchange of shelling. At one point PLO leaders and Christians in the eastern sector of the capital were said to have battled with tanks, rockets and artillery.

Syria yesterday called for a meeting of the PLO leaders to bring Palestinians into a united front against Israel. The government-run daily "al-Thawra," which often called for a PLO disengagement from the Lebanese leftist alliance, said that such a meeting "is considered to be very necessary at this stage."

The wording suggested that Syria was inviting the PLO to join a Damascus-sponsored front also comprising Jordan. Damascus will soon receive Egypt's War Minister Gen. Mohammed Abdul-Ghani Ga-masy who was recently reinstated as supreme commander of the anti-Israel "Arab confrontation front."

PLO sources in Cairo were on the other hand quoted as saying that they planned to convene the PLO National Council (parliament) in Cairo next month to discuss the Palestinian cause. Reports from Cairo said that the latter meeting was advocated by PLO "doves" who are inclined to go along with Egypt and Syria on a united Middle East strategy including the possible political settlement with Israel.

HEAVIER PENALTIES DEMANDED

Farm thefts are now major crime

At about five p.m. on Friday, October 29, Ya'ir Eisenberg arrived at the avocado plantation near Kiryat Shimon to relieve his brother Gool from guard duty. Ya'ir was punctual, because Gool had spent a long, tedious day there. Now that the valuable crop was ripe for picking,
the brothers were guarding it round
the clock. After calling out in vain, Ya'ir found his brother Gool inside his car, dead. He had been shot with his own pistol. A half-filled sack of avocados lay nearby.

The police believe Gool caught a thief picking the avocados and ordered him into the car. There, the thief must have grappled with Gool and shot him dead.

The police have set up a special team to investigate the murder. But no one has yet come up with a solution to the problem, which set the scene for the murder — the wholesale theft of crops, livestock and agricultural equipment.

The phenomenon is neither new nor confined to this country. "Rustling," as it was called in the Wild West, or "border raiding" as it was called on the troubled Medieval frontier between England and Scotland, is a time-honoured custom.

A farmer is murdered in his own avocado plantation. Directors of a citrus company receive threatening calls. The yield of months of hard work and heavy investment disappear in a single night. Ezra Ben-Michael reports on the wholesale theft of crops, livestock and equipment, a problem that poses a serious threat to farmers.

In the Middle East, the armed watchman guarding fields or vineyards has always been a familiar figure. But in Israel, until about four years ago, stealing was on a small-scale, almost amateur basis.
It was something the farmers could live with. Today the situation is quite different, and the amount stolen runs to IL20m. a year.

THE BIG "jobs" are carried out by well-organized gangs of specialist professionals. They have their own sources of information, and sophisticated arrangements for disposing of the loot. They know exactly when a prospective victim will harvest a crop and when and where he will leave it overnight in boxes or containers to be collected in the morning.

A gang of four or five men will simply load the containers onto a truck or a van, and drive off. In practically no time at all they can load three tons of avocados, which is worth some IL18,000.

A small amount of the stolen produce is bought by fences in Israel, but most of it is driven across the "green line" into the West Bank or the Gaza Strip. Some of it is even repacked in Nabulus, Tulkarm or Kalkiya, and exported across the Jordan River, as if it had been grown in the Administered Territories. There is a brisk demand in the Arab world for the Shamuti (Jaffa) orange.

For the Israel farmer, especially the self-employed, one big robbery can mean disaster. One Ra'anana man lost his entire avocado crop, the product of seven months of hard work, in a single night.
ONE REASON for the rapid increase in the number of thefts during the past four years is the grow-

Arab leaders to sound Carter out

By ANAN SAFADI
POST Middle East Affairs Correspondent
Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, Jordan's King Hussein and other Arab leaders last night sent delayed congratulatory messages to U.S. President-elect Jimmy Carter. This followed what appeared to be a day-long Arab assessment of the implications of the presidential election on the Arab world in general and on the Middle East in particular. The bulk of these messages expressed hope that Carter would encourage "just settlement" of the Arab conflict with Israel.

Sadat's cable to the new U.S.
President said that he was "looking forward to fruitful cooperation" with him. The tone of the Egyptian leader's message indicated that he and other Arab leaders have opted for opening a dialogue with Carter whom they had regarded with suspicion prior to his election.

Indications were that the Arabs might initiate an early exchange of views with Carter, especially on the Middle East conflict, although the new President is not considered likely to make any dramatic moves in this regard within the next six months.

Sadat was believed to have taken the lead in dispatching Arab congratulatory messages to Carter. Significantly, Sadat's own message was made public shortly after two days of inconclusive negotiations between Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy
and the latter's Soviet counterpart, Andrei Gromyko, at Sofia, Bulgaria.

Fahmy and Gromyko had issued a joint communique saying that the two sides agreed on a

"continuity" of talks initially aimed at patching up the four-year long rift between Cairo and Moscow. The communique did not mention the two major points at issue between the two countries;
the rescheduling of Egypt's huge debts to the Kremlin, and Moscow's alleged reluctance to resume the flow of arms and spare parts to Cairo. Both issues were highly dramatized after Sadat abrogated a "cooperation and friendship treaty" with the Kremlin early this year.

The Egyptian-Soviet joint communique had conspicuously referred to Gromyko as a "member of the political bureau of the Soviet Communist Party" and not as a Foreign Minister. This emphasis on Gromyko's party standing was seen by some observers as indicating that Moscow is not — as yet — prepared to sit with Egypt on a governmental level, presumably pending a change in Cairo's hostile attitude towards Moscow.

The only point of agreement reported by the communique was that Egypt and the Soviet Union reaffirmed the need for an early resumption of the Geneva Middle East conference "in line" with Moscow's recent call to this effect. Although on this point the Egyptian Foreign Minister seemed to have acquiesced to Moscow's pressure for a "quick"
reconvening of the Geneva forum
— in which the Soviets serve as co-chairmen along with the Americans — observers believe that Cairo will not be swayed into the Soviet orbit before sizing up the new American President and his Middle East intentions.

Rabin expects hard bargaining with U.S.

By YITZHAK OKED
Jerusalem Post Reporter
REHOVOT. — Prime Minister
Yitzhak Rabin said here yesterday that his Government has long been anticipating a year of intensified political bargaining with the U.S. in 1977, regardless of whether or not there was a change in the U.S.
Administration.

"We took this into consideration without knowing who would be president," Rabin told a mid-day question-and-answer forum sponsored by students at the Hebrew University's Faculty of Agriculture
here. He added, "Since the Six Day War, neither the Republicans nor the Democrats has accepted our interpretation of what we call secure borders. And we have yet to see what will happen with the Palestinian issue."

Rabin expressed the hope that U.S.-Israel relations would be as good under the Carter Administration as they have been under Ford, adding that he believed there would be no major changes in the basic U.S. attitude toward Israel in the immediate future.

Answering questions on local is-bour unrest, Rabin pointed out that wages of industrial workers in recent years had decreased in comparison to wages of white collar workers. The Government over the past two years has been trying to increase the pay of industrial workers, but professional workers had undermined these efforts.

He said that doctors, teachers and social workers should have been the leaders in aiding the Government's wage policies. "They could be the leaders because of their educational level," Rabin said.
"From them we can demand more,
not expect maximum demands from them. If they will not show us an example, then who will?"

He added, "There is a ceiling to what the Government can pay. No one in Israel is getting paid what his counterpart is receiving in the U.S., England, or elsewhere. We can't compete with the salaries that American doctors, generals, or government ministers are paid."

"If we start giving in," he went on, "we might as well declare bankruptcy. We simply don't have means to pay for the extras that are being demanded. Already today, out of every pound in our budget, only 60 agorot are from our own sweat and toil. The rest comes from loans, grants and such."

For this reason, Rabin said, the most deserving part of the economic sector was the industrial workers, because "they produce and bring in money."

Replying to a question about the future of the Gush Etzion settlement at Kaddum, Rabin repeated his pledge that a permanent community would not be allowed to exist there. He said the settlers would be offered an alternative site, but added that he wanted to avoid using force for resolving this issue.

New Secretary of State certain

Carter aides prepare new foreign policy

By WOLF BLITZER
Jerusalem Post Correspondent

WASHINGTON. — The State Department is anxiously awaiting the appointment of a Carter Administration liaison official, charged with coordinating U.S. foreign policy with outgoing Secretary of State Henry Kissinger during the 11-week transition period preceding President-elect Jimmy Carter's January 20 inauguration.

Whenever a new political party captures the White House, the new President always selects liaison officials to work with the various branches of the Federal bureaucracy in order to ease the transition process. Often, these officials are top aides and advisers of the new President. But they will not necessarily assume those posts assigned to them during the transition period when the new administration takes office.

It is taken for granted here that Kissinger will leave the State Department. Privately, Carter and his top advisers have made it clear that a new Secretary of State will be named. During the final weeks of the campaign, Carter often criticized Kissinger's policies, charging widespread immorality.

Among the foreign policy men who have worked with Carter during the campaign, and who are reportedly being considered for this key liaison role are Richard Holbrooke, the managing editor of "Foreign Policy" quarterly, Anthony Lake, a former State Department official in the
Johnson Administration, Henry
Owen, the head of the International Relations Section of the Brookings Institution, Richard Gardner, Columbia University professor who was a State Department official in the 1960s, and Thomas Hughes, now head of the prestigious Carnegie Foundation for International Peace who was formerly head of intelligence and research at the State Department.

The State Department spokesman yesterday told reporters that Under-Secretary of State for Management Lawrence Eagleburger would head the Department's transition team with the Carter Administration.
Eagleburger, a close aide to Kissinger, would be the chief link with the Carter liaison.

Kissinger, the spokesman said, would travel to Europe later this month for the Nato meetings in Brussels.

State Department officials insist that U.S. foreign policy is not a partisan issue, that the U.S. has consistent global interests that go beyond domestic politics and that there will, therefore, be no basic changes in the new administration.

But American political observers and foreign diplomats are aware of the fact that Carter and Ford have differences in their world outlook and that some changes in policy are certain to be made.

The State Department is carefully monitoring foreign reaction to the Carter victory. U.S. embassies are said to be reporting back to the Department the predictable uncertainty prevailing in many foreign capitals.

"Foreign governments, like individuals, like to deal with people they know," an official said yesterday. "They knew Kissinger; he was a known quantity, while many foreign leaders do not know Carter personally and know very little about him."

Kissinger wanted to hold a press conference on Wednesday, after the Carter win, to state that there will be no basic policy changes during the transition quarter. It is widely believed that the Secretary wanted to reassure both America's allies and adversaries.

But the Secretary cancelled the press conference with no reason given. Administration officials priv-

Voter turnout was poorest since '48

WASHINGTON. — The voter turn-pollsters had expected. Nationwide, about 53 per cent of the 150 million eligible persons voted, as compared

European socialists to discuss M.E.

Jerusalem Post Correspondent
LONDON. — European Social Democrats will meet this weekend in Holland to discuss the prospects of a new Mideast diplomatic initiative early in 1977 as well as the ramifications of the Lebanese civil war.
The "Roundtable" Conference on Peace and Security, with its emphasis on East-West relations, will attempt to coordinate a common stand of West European socialist parties, many of which are in office.

Dutch Premier Jop den Uyl will preside, and among the statesmen expected are West German SPD Chairman Willy Brandt, and Portugal's Premier Mario Soares. Britain is being represented by Defence Secretary Fred Mulley, and an Israeli delegation will comprise Yosef Tekoa, the former UN ambassador, and Yoram Peri, Israel Labour Party's European representative.

Wounding of Nabulus youths investigated

The authorities were yesterday in-three Arabs were wounded by secur-

Preliminary reports said that the three were hurt during the break-

Several youths were reported to desperate attempts at triggering disturbances to coincide with the UN Security Council debate on the administered territories, which re-

Budget to top IL125b. for fiscal year 1977

By GIDION ESHET
Jerusalem Post Economic Reporter

The Treasury will submit to the Cabinet on Sunday a budget of over IL125 billion for the fiscal year 1977. Discussions on the budget continued late last night, but all that is known is that the total expenditures will exceed IL125b.

The Government's deficit (printing of money) will be over IL6b, causing prices to increase by more than 25 per cent next year.

Four outstanding problems prevented completion of the budget draft:

- The defence budget, a traditional troublemaker. The Treasury allocated about IL34b. for defence. The Defence Ministry is asking for about IL45b. more. Consultations last night on this subject did not close the gap. However, it is agreed that local defence expenditure will be down 4 per cent in real terms over expenditure this year. Purchases of local goods and construction of new buildings for defence purposes will be down by 6 per cent.
- The housing budget, another traditional troublemaker. The Treasury allocated about IL4.5b., which would have enabled construction of only 15,000 new apartments by the public sector. Ten thousand workers in construction will have to leave their jobs, according to the Treasury draft.

• Subsidies on basic commodities. The original allocation was IL1.5b. This was based on increasing prices this week by 40 per cent and not 20 per cent, as decided by the Ministerial Economic Committee. The lower prices will have to be maintained through higher subsidies, about IL1.5b. more than originally allocated.

• Wages. The original draft was based on a 2.5 per cent wage increase for civil servants, as agreed with the Histadrut last month. This figure is already obsolete, and IL1b. more will be needed to meet the 6 to 7 per cent wage increases seen for next year.

The four items are causing problems for the Finance Minister, who will seek ways over the weekend to reduce the budget deficit. One possible way could be through increasing value added tax (VAT). The original draft is based on a 10 per cent VAT, 2 per cent above the present rate.

The Cabinet will also be asked to slash IL300m. to IL400m. from the current budget of various ministries to finance subsidies on basic goods.

The Cabinet on Sunday will appoint Amiram Silvan as director-general of the Finance Ministry.

T.A. Maccabi into finals of European Cup

By STEVE KAPLAN
Jerusalem Post Sports Reporter

TEL AVIV. — The combination of Tel Aviv Maccabi's 101-75 victory last night at the Yad Eliyahu Sports Stadium in Tel Aviv and the defeat of Sinedyev of Italy in Bucharest has assured the Israelis entrance into the final of the European Basketball Champions Cup in January.

Tel Aviv Maccabi got strong rebounding from Aulcie Perry and Lou Silver and excellent fast-breaking from Mickey Berkowitz in the first half to sprint to a 60-32 lead over Olympiakos of Athens. The Israelis dominated every phase and the Greeks had little in keeping the score respectable.

In the second half, Maccabi coach Ralph Klein substituted freely and Maccabi's lead shrank to 19 points. The team lost its momentum and the Greeks gained confidence behind strong performances by Steve Yat-zogio and Jim Connors, an American star.

Maccabi's bright spots were the all-around excellence of Perry, with 24 points and 11 rebounds, and the improved play of Berkowitz, who finished with 21 points.

Maccabi's sloppy second-half efforts gave the fans little to cheer about. But with two minutes left in the game, when it was announced that Dynamo of Bucharest had beaten the Italians, the crowd responded with a thunderous ovation.

Maccabi must now wait for the results of the other five divisions in cup play to learn which of the finest teams of Europe will be their future opponents.

Some officials say protest is make-believe Histadrut boycotts meeting in protest at subsidy cuts

By JOSHUA BRILLIANT
Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — The Histadrut yesterday cancelled a meeting on price increases it was to have had with Finance Minister Yehoshua Rabinowitz and Commerce and Industry Minister Haim Bar-Lev.

The labour federation refused to attend the meeting as a protest against the Government's decision on Tuesday to cut subsidies on basic commodities.

Secretary-general Yeruhm Meshel also informed the Government that the Histadrut is going to quit the Prices Committee.

Meshel yesterday disputed those who said the Histadrut was merely pretending to oppose the Government's decision to cut subsidies.

He told the Alignment faction in the Histadrut that "it will take time until the wound (caused by the unilateral Government decision) heals... it is a profound protest."

The Histadrut would not reverse its stand until there was an agreement on the principles for curbing inflation. He indicated this would require long-term general agreements instead of "day-to-day bargaining" with the Government, and an end to the system whereby the Treasury tries to influence through leaks to the press.

However, some Histadrut officials told The Jerusalem Post the labour federation's protests were "an act" and said it will not fight the issue to a showdown.

Mapam and Independent Liberal sources said the Prices Committee was in any case "a fiction."

Mapam and Independent Liberal sources said the Prices Committee was in any case "a fiction."

Histadrut leaders have complained that representatives of the Government and the private employers have often outvoted the labour federation here on the committee in setting prices for industrial products. The Histadrut has also complained the committee's control over prices is frequently ineffective.

Meshel continues to insist on a Government-Histadrut agreement stipulating what part of the price of each essential commodity the Government should subsidize. However, it is questionable whether the Histadrut Central Committee will really persist in its decision to suspend talks on the issue. The majority rejected Mapam proposals to organize demonstrations against subsidy cuts.

The Government's unilateral decision to cut subsidies appeared to have gotten the Histadrut off the hook. Meshel and other labour federation leaders realize that subsidies had to be cut, although they have misgivings about the way it was done.

However, "workers will now go to the Treasury instead of congregating on the lawn downstairs," a Histadrut official noted here.

Now the Central Committee appears to be trying to make political capital by convening labour councils to express "solidarity" with the Histadrut's protests, declared yesterday.

According to a Mapam source, this Histadrut criticism of the Government will not necessarily align the Alignment in the Knesset, because they expect the paign to centre on foreign aid and security.

But the planned labour and works committee meeting, scheduled for Sunday, will be a "What are you going to say? Vote Likud?" he asked. Wolf of the Likud may those meetings and "set a big you won't have enough to put it out."

In Haifa, meanwhile, the workers at the Israel Shil held an hour-long protest against the subsidy cuts and prices. The shipyarders' union said it would cut them an pay for the strike, held at 6 o'clock to noon.

The committee of the Hail stevedores sent telegrams of protest to Meshel and the Labour Council and announced would consider job action.

Another protest against subsidy cuts was voiced yesterday by the Civil Servants Union, meeting in Tel Aviv. The 1 called on the Histadrut to full compensation to workers the price rises the cuts had

Court to decide today on further remand for Kimhi

TEL AVIV. — The Tel Aviv District Court yesterday decided to extend the remand order on Meir Kimhi for one day, until the magistrates Court here deals today with the Attorney-General's request to keep Kimhi under lock and key for more than the legal 30 days.

Kimhi, the suspected chief accountant of Kupat Holim, was arrested on suspicion of receiving kickbacks and commissions in various Kupat Holim deals. The Tel Aviv remanding magistrate, Arye Even-Ari, ordered his release on IL100,000 bail, but agreed that he remain in the police lock-up for another two days so that the police could appeal his decision.

But Levin asked the policeman in charge of the Kimhi part of the Yadin investigation, Rav-Felak Reuven Weinstein, to submit more convincing evidence at the hearing of the appeal. Weinstein has said he has no new evidence in the case except that Kimhi was in Yadin's confidence and therefore knew of the illegal deals Yadin is suspected of.

Kemar said, the entire $25m. Kupat Holim paid for the Tel Baruch medical centre reached the New York account of the South American investors who sold the centre.

Meanwhile, another suspect in the case, Yadin's sister Sarah Harl, arrested on 10-day remand order at the District Court in Tel Aviv. In the appeal her attorney says that she denies all the suspicions against her.

One of the police suspicions is that she was involved in the dealings of the Hamarveh company, which the police think may have been a go-between in the medical centre deal.

Early attorney asked why she was being held while she is only a minor shareholder in the company and does not hold any office. He claimed that the only reason the police arrested Yadin's sister is to apply pressure on Yadin. (Itim)

Haim Yaron acquittal

Jerusalem Post Staff and Itim

Tat-Aluf (res.) Haim Yaron, who was cleared by the Tel Aviv District Court on Wednesday of all bribery charges against him, was not suspended from the Air Force when the investigation began in April, as incorrectly reported in yesterday's Jerusalem Post. Yaron actually left the Air Force in September 1975, six months before the false charges were filed against him.

It was also erroneously reported that Yaron had been accused of receiving a set of china worth IL100,000. The set in question was worth only IL1,000 and, as the judge found, Yaron never accepted such a gift.

In clearing Yaron of improper behaviour when a businessman, Yosef Marshak, attempted to bribe him, Judge Hadassah Ben-Itto expressed her astonishment at the perjury of former Air Force major, Meir Ben-Aharon, on whose testimony Yaron was brought to trial. "It is unbelievable — really unbelievable — to what lengths an Air Force major is prepared to go in telling tales!"

Leveling strong criticism against the police and the state prosecution, the judge said: "I would expect the prosecution to check and re-check all the evidence so that the truth would come out. There was additional evidence the prosecution did not examine."

Ben-Aharon was dismissed from the Air Force when his complicity in a bribery case was discovered. The judge said that Yaron's attorney, Arye Marinkai, had to do the prosecution's job and prove that Ben-Meir's evidence was a pack of lies. Only through his lawyer was Yaron able to "defend himself from libel."

'European Parliament gaining independence'

By DAVID KRIVINE
Jerusalem Post Economic Correspondent

The European Parliament, up to now, has been little more than a talking shop. But bit by bit, it is acquiring the ligaments of a full-fledged, continent-wide, supra-national legislative assembly, according to its president, Georges Spenale. He is now in Israel, heading a delegation of 10 members from the different member-countries of the Common Market.

Spenale himself is a Frenchman, a Socialist, and a member of the French Chamber of Deputies. Yet first and foremost he is a European — one of the new Europeans. "We don't intend to have a Europe of governments," Spenale said. "We want a Europe of the people."

Up to now, members of the EEC's Parliament are nominated by the nine national parliaments. During 1978, for the first time, the 270 million inhabitants of the EEC will elect their own representatives for the Strasbourg convales by direct ballot.

"The Community is building up its own independent sources of revenue," Spenale said in an interview. "We took 10 years to harmonize European tariffs. Once a common tariff came into force, it could be levied on merchandise wherever that merchandise enters Europe."

He stated: "The national parliaments can no longer say anything about the spending of the money, because it isn't theirs. It belongs to Europe." When asked if the income it provides is sufficient, he answered, "Not quite," adding that the Europeans now have an eye on value added tax.

According to Spenale, the European Parliament does not intend to replace national parliaments, only to supplement them. "There are responsibilities which belong to the individual territories," he said.

A national government needs 12-18 per cent of gross national product as revenue, he estimated. "We need two to four per cent — and plan to secure it directly, without intermediaries," he stated, asserting that the European Parliament will thus outgrow its dependence on the member states.

Snyga Shapiro adds from Tel Aviv:

Spenale yesterday told a press conference that the European Parliament is likely to carefully consider the suggestion that Europe redress its balance of payments with Israel by encouraging investment here. "But we are only an advisory body to our governments; we can only recommend," he said.

Minister of Commerce and Industry Haim Bar-Lev told the delegation that investments could help right the balance of trade between Europe and Israel.

Investments, Spenale remarked, should be guaranteed against devaluation.

President Ephraim Katzir yesterday received the European Parliament delegation, which will leave Israel tomorrow after its four-day visit.

TEL AVIV'S FIREMEN yesterday stopped the job action — refusal to do anything but fight fires — they began on Wednesday in protest against their chief, Ya'acov Ritov. Tel Aviv Mayor Shlomo 18 per cent of gross national product as revenue, he estimated. "We need two to four per cent — and plan to secure it directly, without ing of all labour-relations problems.

No change so far in procedures at Vienna Clash over dropouts seen at coming Jewish Welfare meet

By SARAH HONIG
Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — A confrontation over the problem of Soviet Jews who "drop out" in Vienna on their way to Israel may develop at the Council of Jewish Welfare Federations convention scheduled to open in Philadelphia on November 11.

The Jerusalem Post has learned that some officials of the U.S. HIAS Immigrant-Aid Organization may try to bring the issue up at the convention. However, many within the council — U.S. Jewry's chief fund-raising body — oppose the move, saying it would solve nothing.

HIAS last week accepted in principle recommendations approved in New York on October 19 by a Joint Israel-American committee of light to cut down the aid to Vienna dropouts. But it asked that these recommendations not be implemented yet, as HIAS needs time to arrange for HIAS.

The main recommendation by the committee, appointed after the Jewish Agency assembly in Jerusalem — is that the Agency con-time aiding Jews bound for Israel, while HIAS and the Joint Distribution Committee offer assistance to Jews who applied for visas to the U.S. and other Western countries while they were still in the USSR.

This means that Jews who leave the USSR after having benefited from Israeli aid and on Israeli visas, and who then decide to drop out in Vienna, would have to make their own way.

The changes for which HIAS might need more time include making arrangements to enable Jews in the Soviet Union to apply more easily for U.S. visas.

However, there is some anxiety that the demand for more time is really a delaying tactic on the part of at least some HIAS officials.

Processing procedures in Vienna will apparently continue without change pending a cooling-off period in the dispute.

The guidelines approved by the committee of eight had been due to take effect on February before they can be announced, in a joint statement by Yosef Almog and Max (chairman, respectively, of the Jewish Agency and the Agency of Governors) the guidelines require approval by the bodies of the JDC and HIAS.

Spoken for both HIAS and the JDC have refused to make statements to the press. Statements were issued by the committee of eight.

Some Jewish leaders indicate that the demand for more time to take out a wider range of the Jewish community discussion process.

Holland keeps lead in chess

By ELIAHU SHAHAR
Jerusalem Post Chess Reporter

HAIFA. — Holland kept the lead after the first session of the 10th round of the Chess Olympics yesterday, with 25 points (one adjourned game), after defeating Sweden 2.5-0.5 (1). England defeated Canada 3-1 to keep second place.

The U.S. went into a 1.5-0.5 lead against Israel with two games adjourned. The game on the top board between R. Byrne and V. Liberzon was adjourned. On the second board, L. Kavalek drew with Dzindzichashvili.

On the third board, the game of J. Tarjan vs. L. Lederman was adjourned. On the fourth board, W. Lombardi beat S. Kagan.

Israel's women's team kept up its lead in the finals, scoring a 0.5-0.5 draw against Spain with two adjourned games. The only game finished by 8 p.m. was the draw on the second board between L. Kristol and N. Garcia.

Following are the preliminary results of the 10th round in the men's event of the leading teams:

Holland 2.5, Sweden 0.5 (1); England 3, Canada 1; U.S. 1.5, Israel 0.5 (2); Argentina 2, Austria 1 (1); West Germany 3, Iran 0 (1); Switzerland 2, Colombia 0 (2); Spain 1.5, Chile 1.5 (1); Iceland 1.5, Norway 0.5 (2); Australia 2.5, Italy 0.5 (1); Wales 2, Finland 1 (1); Philippines 1, Paraguay 1 (2).

Leading scores: 1. Holland, 28 (1); 2. England, 26.5; 3-4. U.S. and Argentina, 24.5 (1); 5. West Germany, 24 (1); 6. Israel, 22.5 (2); 7. Sweden, 22.5 (1); 8. Switzerland, 22 (2); 9. Australia, 22 (1); 10. Canada, 22 points.

Preliminary results of the ninth round (finals A) of the women's event: Israel 0.5, Spain 0.5 (2); Australia 0.5, U.S. 0.5 (2); Holland 0.5, England 0.5 (2); West Germany 1.5, Denmark 0.5 (1).

Overall standings: 1. Israel, 8 (2); 2. Holland, 6.5 (2); 3. U.S., 5.5 (2); 4. Spain, 5 (2); 5. England, 4.5 (2); 6. West Germany, 4.5 (1); 7. Australia 4 (2); 8. Denmark 3 (1).

At the end of the ninth round in the men's event Israel improved its position among the leading teams by beating West Germany 2.5-1.5 and drawing with England; 2-2. In the twice-adjourned game between the national champions, Israel's Natan Birnboim gave a first-rate performance of tenacity and accuracy and finally drew his queens-and-pawns end game against K. Wockenfuss.

In the Israel vs. England match of the ninth round, International Master and former Israel champion Shimon Kagan scored a fine victory over Jonathan Mestel and saved the day for Israel, whose two top players, International Grand Master Vladimir Liberzon and Yair Kravitz, were somewhat disappointed in the Israel chess fans.

First they drew what seemed to be a won game against Anthony Miles, and then they lost to Raymond Keene, just on the day he was confirmed as a Grand Master and celebrated his 44th birthday.

Israel's total (3-0) victory over Denmark in the women's event was some consolation for the points lost by their male counterparts.

Holland's lead — two points ahead of its nearest rival (England) — is expressed not only in the number of points, but perhaps more significantly by the fact that the Dutchmen have played all the leading teams except West Germany. Many wonder who is left to stop them. Holland has the best average team result — 70.8 per cent — and their star player, Grand Master Jan Timman, has the best score among the first-board players with 6 points out of 7 games to his credit (85.7 per cent), including five straight wins. With four rounds to go, Holland definitely looked like the No. 1 favourite to win the event at the close of the ninth round.

The Dutch women's team is doing well too. The surprising 3-0 victory over the strong U.S. team in the eighth round put the women of the Netherlands in second place in Finals A.

Final results, ninth round, men's event: Holland 3.5, Chile 0.5; Israel 2, England 2; West Germany 2, U.S. 2; Argentina 2.5 (1), Iran 1.5 (1);

Sweden 4, Philippines 0; Scotland 2, Spain 2; Canada 2.5, Brazil 1.5 (P. Bygglas 1, R. L. W. 1); U.S. 2, Argentina 0; L. Day 0.5, M. Fulmer 0.5; Amos 0.5, S. Rubinstein 0.5; Lipnitski 0.5, M. Woodman 0.5; Austria 1.5 (1), Finland 1.5 (1); Iceland 1.5 (1), Scotland 1.5 (1); Bolivia 2, Luxembourg 1.5; Uruguay 1.5; Dominican Republic 1.5; Zealand 2.5, Denmark 1.5; land 3, Venezuela 1; Costa 3.5, Honduras 0.5; Guatem, Japan 1; Guernsey 2.5, Ho 1.5.

Leading scores after the ninth round: 1. Holland, 25.5; 2. England, 23.5; 3. U.S., 23; 4. Argentina (1); 5-6. Israel and Sweden 7-8; West Germany and 21; 9. Iran, 20.5 (1); 10-13. M. L. 20; Chile, Colombia and S. 20; 14-16. Spain, Norway, Australia, 19.5 points each.

USSR-Iraq arms pact revealed

NICOSIA. — Under a new pact, the Soviet Union will get air and naval facilities in Iraq and provide the Iraqis with $4b. worth of advanced warplanes, warships, tanks and missiles, "Events" magazine reported yesterday.

The Arab-owned London weekly said the agreement was signed last August 17. Details have been kept secret but the magazine said some have been leaked.

"Events" said the agreement is significant because it marks a shift in Soviet policy toward the three traditional power centres in the Middle East: Cairo, Damascus and Baghdad.

The weekly said that after Egypt expelled its Russian advisers and moved toward close ties with the U.S., "It became clear to the Kremlin that Damascus was no substitute for Cairo. Two choices remained to the Soviets: Libya or Iraq."

"Events" said Iraq is to get a squadron of Mig-25 fighters and 128 Mig-23s, 10 squadrons of troop-carrying helicopters, 600 T-82 tanks, several batteries of ground-to-ground Scud and more advanced Scud-like missiles, heavy artillery and hundreds of armoured personnel carriers.

In addition Iraq will get seven missile-carrying frigates, six submarines and a number of speedy missile-carrying gunboats.

"Events" said its sources reported the Soviet Union will get air base facilities at Hurririya in northern Iraq and El Qurnah in the south.

The Russians have already been granted naval facilities at Um Qasr at the head of the Persian Gulf, source of most of the world's oil exports.

According to some reports, the magazine said, there are already 10,000 Soviet experts in Iraq and the number will double under the new pact by the end of 1977.

"Obviously the Soviets are aiming through this protocol to upstage Iran as the leading military power in the Gulf. They are counting on strong nationalist feelings along the Arab shores of the Gulf to forestall any permanent American military presence in its waters and on traditional Arab rivalry with Iran to prevent joining of forces against the Soviet presence," "Events" said.

Avineri at Unesco meeting:

'Soviets ignore Lenin by repressing Jewish culture'

NAIROBI. — Prof. Shlomo Avineri, head of the Israeli delegation to the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, charged on Wednesday that the Soviet Union violates its own laws by repressing Jews.

Avineri, who is Director-General of the Foreign Ministry, said Jews in the Soviet Union were not allowed to pursue their cultural and religious heritage.

In response, Soviet and Egyptian delegates accused Avineri of lying and distorting the truth.

Avineri said he raised this issue before Unesco since culture and heritage issues will be discussed by the 19th General Conference here.

"The Soviet Union has based its nationalities policy on a number of principles most eloquently expressed by Lenin, and one of these principles related to the right of national minorities to express their own culture in their own language and through their own cultural institutions," Avineri said.

Pointing out that Soviet law recognizes Jews as a nationality, Avineri said Jews are not allowed to publish in either Yiddish or Hebrew, cannot have their own schools and cannot open their own theatres.

"According to the Leninist principles themselves, the Jews in the Soviet Union are entitled not to have their cultural heritage destroyed and should have the right to develop their cultural institutions just like any other nationality in the Soviet Union," he said.

2nd round of Egyptian elections

CAIRO. — Egyptians yesterday voted in the second round of parliamentary elections which will be followed by the formation of a new government, expected next week.

Yesterday's voting is for 217 seats out of the 350 seats in the People's Assembly, in constituencies where candidates failed to get the necessary majority in the first round of balloting last week.

In the first round, the so-called centrist group led by Premier Mamdouh Salem made a strong showing, and this trend was likely to be repeated yesterday, observers said.

A novel feature of the elections has been that the Arab Socialist

Union (ASU), for long the country's sole legal political party, has been split into centre, left and right-wing sub-sections as part of cautious steps towards political liberalization.

Salem, who easily won his own seat last week, is expected to continue as Premier when the new government is formed.

No changes are expected in the Foreign and Defence Ministries, now headed respectively by Ismail Fahmy and general Abdel-Ghani Gammassi.

But a shake-up is expected in some of the economic ministries in view of the continuing dismal performance of the Egyptian economy.

Lansky, aging and ill, had been indicted here in 1972 on charges of conspiring to conceal about $36m. in casino earnings from the Flamingo Hotel.

U.S. District Court Judge, Roger D. Foley dismissed the indictment on September 30, saying Lansky's health appeared to be worsening.

A year earlier, doctors told Foley that Lansky was too ill to stand trial.

Last week, the U.S. attorney's office filed notice that it would appeal the dismissal. But assistant U.S. atty. Richard Wright said on Wednesday that a Justice Department representative had later told him to withdraw the notice. No reason was given for the order, Wright said.

Bank of America to stop aiding Arab boycott

SAN FRANCISCO. — The Bank of America, the world's largest bank, said on Wednesday it would stop assisting the Arab boycott of Israel because of a new California state law.

Under the law, which becomes effective in January, any Californian company cooperating with the Arab boycott would be subject to prosecution.

The Bank of America, the first corporation to spell out its compliance with the law, interpreted it to apply not only within state boundaries but throughout the world. It announced it had told its 114 branches in 44 countries as well as its U.S. offices immediately to stop processing any documents which helped to enforce the boycott.

The ban would apply to such documents as letters of credit which guarantee export transactions. In terms of the boycott, they usually contain provisions stating that the goods must be carried in non-Israeli vessels and must not contain any Israeli component.

A Bank of America spokesman said its officials were unable to give figures for the amount of business the bank may lose through stopping processing such documents.

U.S. drops case against Lansky

LAS VEGAS. — The U.S. Justice Department has decided not to appeal a federal court's dismissal of an indictment against Meyer Lansky, alleged financial wizard of the U.S. underworld.

Lansky, aging and ill, had been indicted here in 1972 on charges of conspiring to conceal about $36m. in casino earnings from the Flamingo Hotel.

U.S. District Court Judge, Roger D. Foley dismissed the indictment on September 30, saying Lansky's health appeared to be worsening.

Madrid bus strike ends — at gunpoint

MADRID. — City bus drivers yesterday ended a bitter week-long strike but the imprisonment of three of their leaders threatened to wreck wage negotiations.

Some drivers complained they had been forced back to work at gunpoint by police and the Civil Government's office said 15 workers who tried to stop returning strikers were arrested.

Cairo: Use oil weapon to fight Carter's pro-Israel policy

Egypt's leading newspaper called on the Arab world to forge a united front and find new ways to use oil as a political weapon in order to cope with President-elect Jimmy Carter's pro-Israel policy in the Middle East.

Elsewhere, Carter was viewed as a welcome fresh face or a puzzling unknown by editorialists trying to predict what direction the new American leadership would take.

Cairo's semi-official "al-Ahram" predicted that the new administration would give Israel unlimited support. It urged the Arab states to counter this with a unified political, economic and military policy and new tactics to use Arab oil for political leverage.

"Arabs everywhere don't welcome the success of Carter," wrote Musa Sabry, editor of "al-Akhbar," another Egyptian daily.

"Favda," the Soviet Communist Party newspaper, said President Ford's ban on mention of the detente policy during his campaign was a factor in his defeat because it "caused doubts he would follow a course in international relations which the rank and file of Americans wanted."

But a Chinese Communist newspaper in Hong Kong, "Wen Wei Po," said Carter's victory was a protest against detente because the policy encouraged Soviet military expansion.

It said Americans "are afraid the Soviet Union could become the world's most powerful military country and the United States could be relegated to second place."

Other foreign newspapers commented: "British Financial Times," the voice of London's financial community — "The world has become so accustomed to living not so much with President Ford as with Dr. Henry Kissinger that it is not going to be easy immediately to adjust. He was a man to whom people turned."

London "Daily Express," (Conservative) — "Britons and America's other allies will find in Jimmy Carter one of the best and most powerful friends that they have ever had."

London "Daily Telegraph" (Conservative) — Carter's foreign policy approach will be "rather more moralistic."

"The Times" of London — "If nobody knows who Jimmy Carter really is, it means that Jimmy Carter is himself still free to decide."

In other Arab comments, two Kuwaiti newspapers warned that the election of Jimmy Carter might delay the search for peace in the Middle East, with one newspaper saying this could lead to another war.

"Al-Siyassah" said that a change in America's Middle East might mean the Arabs would be prepared for a new change might result in Carter's primary preoccupation local American rather than national affairs, it said.

"A delay in settling the East crisis might not be the important thing is it should be no change (in Middle East policy)," it said.

"Any change would mean the Arabs would have to for a new war as they could lose more than they have already lost," the paper predicted.

The newspaper "al-Rai" said that Mr. Carter's election meant that the year 1977, seen as the year in Middle East politics, would be a "wicked year."

It said that Mr. Carter's election campaign and was expected to take a long time studying the Middle East.

The newspaper said it "bright spot" in the horizon that Mr. Carter did not keep Henry Kissinger as Secretary of State.

"We only hope that Carter not let us later regret the Kissinger," it added.

In Amman, the daily "al-Yarmuk" said the Arab states should inform one another given them any pledges or so that they can adopt it. The newspaper said the administration that they accept the "freezing" of the East crisis for many months.

Polish plane 'rye-jacked'

VIENNA. — A 20-year-old convicted burglar chewed a loaf of rye bread into what looked like a weapon yesterday and used it to hijack an airliner, deporting him to his native Poland, Austrian officials said. The man surrendered after forcing the plane to land in Vienna.

The hijacker, Andrzej Jaroslaw Karowinski, was being questioned by Austrian authorities after the other 28 passengers on the Polish airliner continued the flight from Copenhagen to Warsaw.

The Pole, who had gone to Denmark in 1974, had been declared an undesirable resident and ordered deported from Denmark after finishing a four-month jail term there for burglary, theft and forgery. He had pleaded with Danish officials to allow him to stay, but refused and sent him to F. J. J. Karowinski was allowed to take aboard several loaves of Danish rye bread, which he hoarded in prison. When board, police said later, he "partially used his teeth to open the loaves into small pieces, looked like a pistol, or a grenade and threatened to up the plane."

The hijacker said he wanted to land in Vienna. Interior Minister Otto Roesch said the Austrian authorities first landing permission but of their minds after the pilot insisted it was an emergency.

Argentine rightists execute sev

BUENOS AIRES. — Seven persons two leftist terrorists in fresh police sources said. Carlos Lopez, 41, was the second Chuyaleto, killed in three months, only a year's death toll due to violence is now placed at 100. The military was heard on the day night in an isolated area some 800 kms. northwest of Buenos Aires.

Security personnel believe rightists are responsible for the slayings. The incident was reminiscent of two mass executions near Buenos Aires last August that left 47 dead.

On Wednesday, leftist guerrillas assassinated an Argentinean executive of the U.S.-owned Chrysler auto company and army troops killed them.

THE RABBINICAL DIVISION

THREAT TO FARMERS

ing value of the spoils. More and more land in Israel is being devoted to high-price sub-tropical fruits such as mangoes and avocados, and to winter vegetables for export.

Also, there is a growing variety of expensive equipment and supplies, including pipes, copper sprinklers, chemical fertilizers and insecticides. Some of these items are stored under lock and key, but the storehouses are usually cut in the fields, and with no one around at night, the thieves have no difficulty in breaking in.

The Yakhin Haskal Company of Ashkelon lost IL270,000 worth of chemical pesticides in one robbery. The Pri-Or Citrus Cultivation and Marketing Company hired a firm of private detectives to investigate the theft of chemical fertilizers from its stores. Apparently, the sleuths picked up a trail, because the company managers were threatened: "Call off the investigation, or we'll fix you and your families."

Another cause of the boom in crop-stealing lies in the difficulty of keeping watch over assets which are, by their very nature, dispersed over a wide area. In Israel, there are 380,000 dunams of citrus, 120,000 dunams of orchards, and 80,000 dunams of sub-tropical crops under cultivation. An alarm system can be installed in a factory, but it would obviously be prohibitively expensive for an entire farm.

What makes matters worse is that few, if any, farmers are insured against theft. If an insurance company were to agree to take the risk, the premiums would be extremely high. What has happened is that some farmers, faced with the spread of theft, have begun to think twice before planting a new crop.

IN THE VIEW of Shlomo Reisman, assistant director of the Farmers' Association, part of the blame for the situation lies with the general system. He says the big-time thieves are seldom if ever apprehended, and when one of the smaller fry is caught, it takes nearly three years for his case to come to court. If he is convicted, a ludicrous fine, sometimes as low as IL25, is imposed.

The farmers are calling for a compulsory five-year jail term and a fine of not less than IL10,000, which would be in keeping with the system in the U.S. and Australia.

In Texas you get five years for stealing a calf," Reisman points out. "The farmers also want offenders brought to trial within two weeks."

To press their case, representatives of the Farmers Association and the Kibbutz and Moshav Movements recently met the Inspector-General of Police, who agreed to the introduction of joint patrols of police and farmers.

The State Attorney's Office, for its part, has instructed district prosecutors to bring farm thieves to trial more quickly, and to appeal against penalties which seem to be too lenient.

But the Justice Ministry has so far rejected demands for high minimum penalties, on the grounds that similar penalties would be demanded, say, for people who attack welfare workers and for other offenders who are in the news.

Reisman finds this explanation hard to accept. "Why shouldn't there be effective penalties to protect social workers, farmers and all other victims?" he asks.

At any rate, the Government does not intend to change the law. But a private member's bill which would meet the farmers' demands was introduced this week by Knesset Member Pessah Gruper of the Likud.

Criminological experience suggests that an increased chance of being caught is a more effective deterrent to a thief than increased penalties. So it all comes back to the need to catch the big-time thieves in the act.

But it is doubtful whether the police, burdened as they are with security and other problems, have the manpower and resources to effectively tackle the problem of the crop thieves.

MIDRASH ON THE NEWS / Moshe Kohn

Gossip and hearsay—David to Yadlin

WHEN the Talmudic Sages superimposed their Midrashic legends on the Biblical accounts of events and personalities, they were rarely if ever merely engaging in an intellectual exercise. Many of them were themselves key figures in social and political events of their times, and their primary intention was to comment on these events.

Accordingly, it is easy to compose such Midrashic comments on many of the roots and ramifications of today's events, including the Asher Yadlin Affair.

The Sages justify the cry of "Lynch!" and "Trial by newspaper!" voiced by Yadlin and his supporters in the weeks before he was finally remanded into custody, and even now that it is clear that, "aesthetically" at least, he is not so baby-innocent but has not yet been tried by due process.

The Sages ask (Vayikra Rabba 26:3): How is it that although the young men of David's time were so righteous and such great Tora scholars, so many of them fell in battle, whereas in the wicked King Ahab's time, life with idolatry, there were relatively few casualties?

Because David's generation, unlike Ahab's, was ridden with informers and people who spread and readily believed gossip, rumour, hearsay—manifestations which the Sages put under the heading of lashon hara—evil tongue. Even if the reports thus spread are true, they are "evil tongue," which is also called "sheleket" ("third") because it slays three: the teller, the listener, and the subject.

BUT SOME of us tend too easily to cry "Lynch!" and blame the accuser, or in general pass the blame.

Our first king, Saul, was "head and shoulders above his fellows... there was no better man among the Israelites" (I Samuel 9:2). Yet he dies ignominiously on the battlefield and founds no dynasty. On the other hand, one could draw a portrait of David as a ruthless, opportunistic, vindictive brigand and wench. Yet he has come down to us as the "sweet singer of Israel," founder of the paradigmatic kingship and father of the Messiah.

Saul's major sin, it seems, was in disobeying God's command concerning the Amalekites (I Samuel 15). But not only that. For that failure and his failure to wait for Samuel to arrive for a scheduled meeting at Gilgal (I Samuel 13), Saul blamed "the people." David, on the other hand, several times readily accepted blame: for bringing a plague on Israel by taking a census (II Samuel 24 and I Chronicles 21); for causing Saul to order the slaughter of the priests at Nob (I Samuel 22); for what he did to Uriah the Hittite (II Samuel 11:12); and he even made restitution to the Gibeonites for something Saul had done to them (II Samuel 21).

And the Sages tell us (Midrash Tehillim 100:2): "He who conceals his faults will not prosper" (Proverbs 28:13)—this is Saul... "whereas he who confesses his faults and gives them up will find mercy" (ibid.)—this is David.

ONE OF the causes of public consternation when "it" happens to a man like Asher Yadlin is that it should happen to a man of such presumably impeccable origins.

But the Sages warn us (Yoma 22b): Why did Saul not become the founder of a dynasty? Because of his impeccable pedigree. Rabbi Yohanan said in the name of Rabbi Shimon ben Yehozadak: A person should not be appointed to public office unless he has a skeleton in his closet, so that if he gets too heady, he can be put in his place.

Too often, when there is a public outcry about a person being appointed to a job for which he has no evident professional qualifications, we are told that he possesses a good combination of Zionist-Israeli virtues, a good record in his previous assignments, and a proven ability to learn on the job. Too often it transpires that this is not enough, and that the public was right not to have confidence in the judgment of the insiders who "know."

The Sages tell us (Berachot 55a): Do not appoint someone to public office before consulting the public. The Sages, by no means "democrats" as we understand the term, certainly do not mean that we should hold a referendum on every appointment. They do obviously mean that public wardens should temper their sensitivity to their private loyalties with a healthy sensitivity to public opinion.

COMMENTING on the manner in which Moses administered the gold and silver which the Israelites contributed for the building of the Tabernacle in the wilderness, the Sages tell us (Shmot Rabba 51:1-2): No fewer than two people should be appointed to administer public funds. For we see that even though Moses was sole treasurer, when it came time to render an account, he did so together with others.

FINALLY: The community as a whole is not rendered unclean on account of the uncleanness of one individual (Berachot 89b).

Six policemen awarded prizes

Jerusalem Post Reporter

SIX MEMBERS of the Jerusalem area police force are to receive "distinguished policemen" awards from the local Policemen's Welfare Association. The prizes, of IL1,000 each, will be given at a ceremony next Monday, Policemen's Day, at the Municipality.

The six prize-winners, who include a woman and a Druse, are: Yisrael Elmer, who joined the police in 1949 and has served in the prosecutor's office since 1964. His work in court has been lauded by colleagues and judges alike. Haim Cohen, joined the force in 1961 and is now serving as master sergeant at Jerusalem headquarters. Despite a heart attack, suffered as a result of his heavy work load, he continues to carry out his duties energetically and faithfully.

Yisrael Yosef has been a policeman in patrol and operational positions for eight years. He is receiving the prize for his personal initiative in catching thieves who broke into a house in the Romema quarter.

Ne'eman Bader joined the force in 1973. On March 15, 1976, he was instrumental in discovering a bomb in a vehicle parked in Silwan.

Ilana Yemini, serves as a counsellor for school safety patrols. She is to receive the prize for her devotion and exemplary behaviour.

Kamal Abdulla, from the Druse village of Kuria in Upper Galilee, is serving in the police as part of his army service. His superiors in the Border Police recommended him for the award because of the diligence with which he carries out all orders.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS / Yohanan Boehm

Travelling musical envoy

SINGAPORE is smaller than Israel in size and population, but it has one advantage over Israel, musically speaking. Its Premier, Li Kwan Yu, takes a personal interest in and actively supports the expansion of music activities in schools in order to create the concert audiences for the future and educate young people toward becoming members of orchestras now being developed.

When Shalom Ronit-Riklis, one of our touring conductors, was sent to Singapore in 1969 to assist in the formation of the National Symphony Orchestra, Singapore had been an independent state for only three years. The Government felt that music might be a good medium for promoting close contact between its heterogeneous population. (Of Singapore's roughly 4,000,000 inhabitants, the majority are Chinese, with a large number of Malays, and the remainder are Burmese, Indians, and Europeans.)

The country had some 35 part-time musicians, most of whom worked in another profession and were self-taught. The orchestra was enlarged to 50 players (of different levels of proficiency), but after two months strenuous work, Ronit-Riklis was able to conduct a public concert which was received with enthusiasm. He went back to Singapore twice in 1970, each time for a six week spell and has now spent another three weeks there, working with the Singapore University Orchestra and suggesting plans for future expansion to Premier Li Kwan Yu. Ronit-Riklis has been asked to go to Singapore for two years to develop music education even further. This is a very tempting prospect, but he feels that he cannot leave his work in Israel for such a long period. (He is conductor of the Tel Aviv University—Rubin Academy Young Symphony Orchestra and chief conductor of the Herta and Paul Amiria Chamber Orchestra.)

At the same time he seems to have conquered another country: South Africa. He has conducted there five times within the last two and a half years. His first visit was with the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra in August 1974, and he was invited to conduct the Durban Symphony Orchestra the following year. In August 1975 he took the Tel Aviv University String Ensemble to Johannesburg for a predominantly black audience, among them the conductor of an 80-player string orchestra from Soweto (the township outside Johannesburg which has been the scene of so much rioting this year). Ronit-Riklis has been in South Africa twice this year, conducting the Durban Symphony in June and the South African Broadcasting Orchestra in Johannesburg in September.

TEAT YOUTH GROUPS making music are excellent ambassadors for their country and can forge strong bonds between people in becoming more and more apparent. In fact, we make so bold as to suggest that our young music-makers have created more good relations and towards our country than many official delegations. In the same way, the youth orchestras and choirs coming to Israel in growing numbers help to pave the way for better understanding between the young people of many nations.

Only recently, the Symphony Orchestra of the Municipal Music School of Braunschweig demonstrated its quality (the 80 members represented over 1300 music students). Even more personal links were forged by the charming choir from Rothenburg (near Bremen-Hamburg), which last month sang its way through the country—in Jerusalem schools, at Old City monasteries (in gratitude for putting them up at very short notice) in kibbutzim and villages. At Tel Sheva, where the singers were housed with families last weekend, genuine friendships were created. Without knowing each other's language—the lingua franca was an incredibly broken English—the boys and girls from Rothenburg came close to their opposite numbers at the village (hauling from Persia, Morocco, India, Iraq, and other non-European countries, and there were even tears at the time of parting).

TWO BIG competitions are in the offing. One is the prestigious annual Queen Elisabeth International Music Competition, in Brussels. The subject for 1977 is Composition, in three categories: works for symphony orchestra, for chamber orchestra, and for string quartet. Composers of nationalities other than Belgian are providing their entries for the closing date of March 15, 1977. Further information is obtainable from 11, rue Baron Horta, B-1000 Bruxelles (Belgium).

The other competition is for pianists born on or after July 9, 1945, and on or after July 9, 1961. Deadline for applications is December 1, 1976; address: Sydney International Piano Competition 1977, P.O. Box 238, Grosvenor Street, Sydney NSW 2000 Australia.

IF YOU ARE looking forward to the new edition of Grove's Dictionary of Music and Musicians, you will still have to wait another two years. In the meantime, the fifth edition of Grove's was recently re-issued by Macmillan. The ten-volume original hardback costs £75, and the paperback edition is around £35. The new issue, completely rewritten by some 2000 contributors, with some 22,500 entries will have rather more than double the number of words than the fifth edition. The price will be in the region of £800—(which puts it out of reach for most people).

From four volumes in the first edition (1859), the dictionary grew to five in 1900, remained at that number for the 3rd edition in 1927, while the 4th had one supplementary volume (in 1940). Founded by Sir George Grove (1820-1900), later edited and revised by J.A. Fuller-Maitland (2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 21st, 22nd, 23rd, 24th, 25th, 26th, 27th, 28th, 29th, 30th, 31st, 32nd, 33rd,
